

17th February	Corbettmaths
Mollie has £250 in her bank account to the nearest ten pounds. What is the smallest amount she could have?	What is the largest amount she could have?
Enlarge the quadrilateral by scale factor $\frac{1}{4}$ with centre of enlargement (0,0)
In a sale, normal prices are reduced by 25%.	Calculate the normal price of the calculator.
The sale price of a calculator is £8.82
Solve these simultaneous equations $6x + 2y = 14$ $3x - 5y = 10$

17th February	Corbettmaths
Mollie has £250 in her bank account to the nearest ten pounds. What is the smallest amount she could have?	What is the largest amount she could have?
Enlarge the quadrilateral by scale factor $\frac{1}{4}$ with centre of enlargement (0,0)
In a sale, normal prices are reduced by 25%.	Calculate the normal price of the calculator.
The sale price of a calculator is £8.82
Solve these simultaneous equations $6x + 2y = 14$ $3x - 5y = 10$	